In its capacity as official sponsor of the exhibition, Faber - the world leader in the kitchen hood sector - will present a new air-purifying technology to be used in the kitchen.

Milan, September 2016. From the 28th of September to the 1st of October, Faber will be sponsoring the 2016 Bologna Design Week, the international design event set in the capital of Emilia Romagna.

"We are very pleased to be taking part in Bologna Design Week, an event that has been experiencing considerable growth and that has already become an important showcase for the industry," said Riccardo Remedi, Managing Director of Faber. "The exhibition offers us the perfect opportunity to present Innov-Air, our latest new air-purifying technology for use in indoor environments. This is an extremely important mission for Faber, because - as our slogan says - Air Matters".

To present this important innovation, Faber has organized an event to be held on Thursday, the 29th of September, entitled "unhealthy buildings and pollution in the home: ways to improve the air in the house and in the kitchen". During the meeting, the speakers will explain the causes and consequences of air pollution inside the home, especially in the kitchen, and will provide a range of architectural solutions. Finally, Faber will present the new Innov-Air technology, an exclusive air processing system that purifies cooking fumes. This innovative recycling system filters and destroys polluting bacteria and odours, and returning clean, healthy air, both in the kitchen and in the rest of the home.

The event, scheduled for Thursday, the 29th of September at 18:00, will be held in the Conference Hall of the former Bastardini Hospital, in Via Massimo D'Azeglio, 41.
