

FABER PRESENTS ITS NEW “UNCONVENTIONAL COUNTRY” CATALOGUE

The new Faber catalogue includes two models available in island versions for the first time

Milan, January 2018. Faber, the Italian company that invented the kitchen hood back in 1955, has just published its new Country Catalogue. Among many other bright new ideas, the catalogue includes two new models, Thea Island and Chloé XL Island, and also sees the arrival of Chloé, the minimal country hood in energy efficiency class A.

Browsing through the new catalogue, it's easy to see how much attention has been paid to details and to the choice and finish of materials. The unrivalled quality of Italian craftsmanship emerges clearly from the smallest details of Faber hoods. One of the distinguishing features of the new models is the choice of wood for to add elegance and natural warmth to Faber's advanced technology.

The new catalogue is packed with information and interesting facts and is divided into three sections focused on wall, island and corner hoods. Faber's main objective in offering such a wide range of styles, designs and materials is to satisfy the needs and preferences of all customers.

THEA WALL AND ISLAND

Whether in wall or island form, Thea's simple, geometric lines, enhance the look of any modern kitchen. This elegant hood is the first of the new models from Faber. Thea comes in matt white or matt dark grey and features a surround in precious oak wood or stainless steel. This important feature lets you personalise your kitchen by adding a touch of modernity or reinforcing its country look. In the case of the island version, this same choice extends to the ceiling plate, also available in wood or stainless steel. Faber has even thought of matching complements and offers you the chance to add an oak wood shelf. An indispensable addition to your kitchen, this shelf combines practical functionality with attractive styling and comes in the same finish as the Thea hood surround.
